

Liz Vacco Bio

Liz Vacco is the owner and creator of Petite Feet. Liz created, choreographed and wrote the scripts for both her Petite Feet videos. In 2011, she launched with the DVD entitled “Petite Feet: Ballet Adventures with Liz.” Her second video, “Petite Feet 2: Ballet Adventures with Liz - The Alphabet Jungle,” was released in December 2014.

Liz is a Los Angeles-based performer, choreographer and educator. She has worked with Les Freres Corbusier, The Collapsable Giraffe, Fovea Floods, Gold No Trade, One Year Lease, Sidra Bell Dance NY and at Lincoln Center’s Clark Studio Theater, St. Ann’s Warehouse, PS 122, and the Hangar Theater. She has toured regionally and internationally with these performance groups, most recently to Shanghai, China. She is a founding member of the multi-disciplinary performance collaborative, Immediate Medium, contributing to their original and genre-defying works as a creator, performer and choreographer since 2002. She can also be seen in a handful of commercials, and has choreographed for several graduate level student films.

For nearly 15 years, Liz has taught dance, choreography, theater, and yoga to children at various schools and studios, and through various programs in New York City and Los Angeles, including New York City Ballet’s Education Program and Gabriella Charter School.

Liz is currently working on her Master’s degree in Education with a focus on elementary education from California State Los Angeles. Liz currently teaches a class called “Reading in Motion” to kindergarteners at Gabriella Charter School in Los Angeles, which uses movement to explore the alphabet, letter sounds and spelling.

She grew up in Stow, Massachusetts, and graduated from Yale with honors in Theater Studies. Throughout her four years at Yale, she danced and choreographed for Yaledancers and served as the organization’s co-president and treasurer.
